

Samsara vs Buddha

- 1) Samsara is a tendency to cling to the past and crave into the projected future.
- 2) Buddha is immersion into the moment-to-moment momentum of existence (Engine of Life).
- 3) The following slides will attempt to “illustrate” this transition in perception.

Samsara

Linear Time Perception - Samsara

Buddha

MOMENTS Radiating in constant MOMENTUM – non-linear time experience

- 1) PAST, PRESENT and FUTURE become irrelevant when engaged in the transitory constant of impermanence from moment-to-moment.
- 2) There is no-"thing" to cling to, nor any to project.
- 3) Every moment is a transition to be experienced.
